Eight people made a significant and lasting impact on the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in 2011 — collectively contributing through their bequests more than $900,000 towards our work. Whether the gift was a few thousand dollars or a few hundred thousand dollars, these donors cared enough about our work to make us a part of their “families” through bequests. We gratefully acknowledge their generosity and foresight. They have passed away, but their commitment to conserving Western Pennsylvania’s land, water, and life continues. We are pleased to honor their legacies through the following brief biographies:

Barbara Armstrong, of Pittsburgh, Pa., first became a member of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in 1977. She had a varied career, with jobs including running a boarding home in the 1960s, checking coats for the Pittsburgh Playhouse, and holding several secretarial positions. Her last position was with Freid, Kane & Walters, where she retired at the age of 80. Following that, she enjoyed her retirement for another 17 years! (No photo available.)

Kenneth Cashdollar, of Bethel Park, Pa., worked for nearly 40 years as a research physicist for the U.S. Bureau of Mines in the Fires and Explosions research group in Pittsburgh. Mr. Cashdollar’s brother Charles tells us that he had a passion for photography and for the outdoors. He filled numerous photo albums with pictures taken on his many hikes in the mountains. He was a loyal Evergreen Circle member of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, with his first year of membership in 1980.

Caroline and Chester Davies, of Lancaster, Pa. (formerly of Kittanning, Pa.), were members of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy since 1988. WPC received a gift from their trust after they both passed away. According to their son Mike, they provided for the Conservancy in their estate plans because “they felt blessed to have achieved their level of success and thought they should share their bounty with others and give back to the system that allowed them to prosper. For years, both had strong feelings about preserving the environment and thought that this was a way in which they could fulfill both goals.” (No photo available.)

Rachel Donaldson, of Oakmont, Pa., lived there almost all of her 96 years. She graduated from Chatham University and received a Master’s degree at the University of Pittsburgh. Prior to her 1947 marriage, she taught English and Latin at local schools. During World War II, Mrs. Donaldson joined the Waves and accepted a variety of assignments, including teaching naval law and serving as a radar supply specialist. Mrs. Donaldson won numerous awards for her flower arrangements and enjoyed both the Garden Club and her book club. Mrs. Donaldson’s first gift to the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy was in 1965.

Florence Jacob, of Carnegie, Pa. became a member of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in 1993. She lived 86 years and was preceded in death by her husband, Harry. A longtime resident of the Stanton Heights section of Pittsburgh before moving to Carnegie, she saw firsthand the value of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy’s community gardens. According to her sister, Jane Lubic, she appreciated the Conservancy’s efforts to beautify the city of Pittsburgh with flowers (there are 98 gardens in Allegheny County alone). She also enjoyed reading westerns and playing bridge.

Gertrude Kneil, of McKees Rocks, Pa. was born in New York City, but moved to the Pittsburgh area as a child. She graduated from Winchester Thurston School and went on to Brynmawr College and Carnegie Tech (Carnegie Mellon) for further education. She enjoyed a long career as a librarian — serving both in Pittsburgh and an earlier stint in England. Gertrude was known for her world travel and photography. She especially loved to photograph the covered bridges in the eastern United States. She was very giving of her time as well through her involvement with many civic organizations and charities. She was a loyal Western Pennsylvania Conservancy member for 45 years. (No photo available.)

Betty McCurdy, of Mt. Lebanon, Pa. was an avid photographer of nature and animals — and birds in particular. She loved the outdoors and enjoyed cross country skiing and travel across the United States and abroad. She also had a passion for writing. Betty retired from Westinghouse with over 35 years of service. She passed away at the age of 88. She was a member of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy since 1962. (No photo available.)

Mary Louise Weber, of Mars, Pa. began supporting the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in 1964 and also volunteered on occasion for land stewardship clean up days. Mrs. Weber graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with a bachelor’s degree in chemistry. Besides supporting the Conservancy, she was active in the Keystone Tall Tree Girl Scout Council and volunteered for many other organizations.

Together, these gifts contributed to the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy’s ability to make a lasting impact on the region. We wish that we could have personally thanked them for their foresight and generosity.

We are grateful to learn about our donors’ bequest intentions before their passing because it gives us an opportunity to thank them and to hear more about what they wish to accomplish with their ultimate gifts. We are pleased to be able to acknowledge our current 94 Heritage Circle members in the listing on page 3.

If you have included the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in your estate plans, we hope that you’ll let us know. We’d be honored to recognize your commitment to our work now (or keep your intentions anonymous if you prefer). Heritage Circle members receive special communications about our work along with invitations for events and outings planned especially for our closest donors.

For five consecutive years, the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy has received a four-star rating out of a possible four stars from Charity Navigator, America’s largest independent evaluator of charities. Rated exceptional for financial health, accountability and transparency, this recent ranking places the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in the top 4% of all charities that Charity Navigator ranks.

In one year (2011), WPC enhanced more than 220 miles of streams and rivers — equivalent to the driving distance between Pittsburgh and York, Pa. By reducing pollutants and sediment in the streams, we are improving the health of our vital water resources.

TreeVitalize Pittsburgh, for which WPC is the lead partner, planted nearly 4,000 street trees in Greater Pittsburgh in 2011. Over the last three years, we’ve partnered with communities and volunteers to put 12,500 trees in the ground.

Our 135 community gardens across 20 counties encouraged volunteers — from school-age to senior citizens — to dig in the earth and create something beautiful. The gardens gave a dose of nature and displayed beautiful flowering colors for hundreds of thousands of commuters each day.

In 2011, WPC conserved more than 2,800 acres of natural lands for future generations to enjoy.

Fallingwater, which celebrated 75 years of art in nature in 2011, engaged more than 160,000 visitors in 2011 alone. This icon of organic architecture encourages visitors to pause, reflect, and marvel at a house situated over a roaring stream.

Mission Statement: The Western Pennsylvania Conservancy protects and restores exceptional places to provide our region with clean waters and healthy forests, wildlife and natural areas for the benefit of present and future generations. The Conservancy creates green spaces and gardens, contributing to the vitality of our cities and towns, and preserves Fallingwater, a symbol of people living in harmony with nature.
